More about HeadForce.ch

HeadForce.ch is an innovative project having as its objective the automation of communication in the field of translation. In spite of the remarkable evolution in computer technology there is still no software capable of delivering accurate translations. Thus, at least for the next few years, the resources of the human brain will remain indispensable. HeadForce's target is to use the potential of the Internet to provide the highest possible level of automated communication between clients and translators. HeadForce.ch is based on a modular structure, each module representing an Online Translation Team, offering a specific number of languages and branches.
